...He was sliding through the cracks. He wasn't growing in the areas where he struggled or the areas that he excelled. It wasn't terrible. We were blessed with some amazing teachers during his years of public school. It just wasn't the best fit for him. That's when we started looking into different options for our family and found ACA. We're grateful for a school where our kids are challenged in the areas that are hard for them, but also encouraged to push themselves in those areas that come easier for them as well.

I love that ACA focuses on the whole child; growing them as leaders, teaching them to take care of their physical and mental health, and advancing academically. My kids get to spend so much time learning in nature. My daughter has become a great little garden helper. My son has learned to look out for the younger kids he's around and be helpful. He's really become a leader at ACA. I'll never forget his face after he came home with his first ever academic award from school. His confidence soared—and his learning followed.

I love that my girl is encouraged to be her own, unique self! She's so funny, artistic, and caring all wrapped up in a quirky little package and she has really done well at ACA. Students are encouraged in their faith and have Bible time at school. It means so much to know that my kids are prayed over daily. I know that Jesus is in that building.

I love that I get to drop my kids off and not worry about them during the day, because I have had the opportunity to get to know every adult they encounter and I know they love my kids and want what is best for them.

I love that parents are always welcomed and I've gotten to know so many other wonderful families.

Honestly, I could go on all day about the things I love about ACA. It's not perfect, but I know it's the perfect place for my kids to grow and learn. I'm thankful for the option we have to find what learning environment best fits our kids to help them grow and become the best they can be.
